

SELF, SOCIETY, AND ENVIRONMENT: AN INTERCONNECTED WORLDVIEW

CSPH 1101

3 Credits | Fall 201•

Primarily Online•

/0-14.

Instructor:
John Miller, MA

As the world becomes more global, the Western worldview has begun to predominate. But humanity is much richer than that, and the Western worldview has much to learn from diverse world cultures. An interconnected worldview is both cutting edge scientific, as well as consistent with indigenous worldviews that have stood the test of time. This course will help you understand your worldview and how it was formed, consider other world views, and deepen your understanding of how an interconnected worldview will ensure that your actions have positive and sustainable effects on yourself and the world.

Visit z.umn.edu/CSPH1101 for more information.