At the Bakken Center for Spirituality & Healing, we promote health and wellbeing by blending the best of modern, conventional healthcare with integrative healing practices. We accomplish this by teaching healthcare professionals about interconnectedness of body-mind-spirit and the vital roles that world culture and spirituality play in achieving optimal health and wellbeing. The Center is a national leader in the field of integrative therapies and healing practices through its education, research, and outreach efforts.

The Center offers many interdisciplinary learning opportunities. You may pursue our master’s degree in integrative health and wellbeing coaching, a certificate or graduate minor in integrative therapies and healing practices, or take courses for personal growth and professional development.
